PATRIOTIC ORDERS' CONVENTION

BUSINESS AND PLEASURE OCCUPY ATTENTION OF DELEGATES

Favored by Fine Weather. Visitors Like Grayling's Hospitality.

The Ladies National League and National League of Veteran Sons are holding their 20th national convention in this city. The session opened Wednesday forenoon and closed this afternoon. There are about sixty delegates present from out of the city.

The ladies are being entertained in the homes of the local members while the men are stopping at the local hotels. The officers of the latter organization are being cared for at Shoppenagons Inn.

For several weeks First Vice-President Martha Holliday of Grayling, has been busy completing arrangements for the affair and when the delegates arrived they found everything in readiness for them. Everybody seems to be happy and comfortable.

National President of the Ladies League, Mrs. Olive Knapp of Saginaw was detained at home by the serious illness of her mother and in her absence Mrs. Lottie Jereau of Bay City is presiding. The other officers present are Mrs. Martha Holliday, 1st vice president, and Mrs. Mabel Ketzbeck, 2nd vice president, both of Grayling; Mrs. Mary McKullem, Detroit, chaplain; Mrs. Emma Dewitt, Midland, picket; Mrs. Mabel S. Gray, Saginaw, secretary; Mrs. Millie Stack, Detroit, treasurer.

The ladies are holding their sessions in Odd Fellow Temple. The executive board met Tuesday afternoon and worked until 11 p. m. revising the by-laws. Wednesday morning they started right into business and the delegates listened to letters of greeting from National President Mrs. Knapp, and also from the first national president Mrs. Anna E. Dedrick of Los Angeles, Calif., who is known among the members as the "mother of the order."

Veteran Sons. The national presiding officer of the Veteran Sons, Gen. Fred Gill, of Saginaw, also was unable to be present and Maj. Gen. R. J. Gillespie of Flint had to take charge of the convention meetings. The other national officers present were Brig. Gen. E. V. Barber of Grayling; Quartermaster General T. H. Andrews, Flint; and Adjutant Gen. E. B. Metcalf, Saginaw.

Nearly all the officers and delegates of the Veteran Sons are veterans of the Civil war. They spent the forenoon Wednesday getting acquainted and renewing old comradeships. A number visited the Fish Hatchery and called on Grayling friends.

One of the pleasant features was the visit of delegate M. C. Barney of Flint, who visited the school Wednesday morning and gave a forty-five minute address on Sherman's march to the sea, in which campaign he took a part. He told of many incidents of this memorable event that are not recorded in history. It was an inspiring talk and brought out prolonged applause, necessitating further remarks. At the conclusion every pupil went forward and shook hands with the speaker and with several of his comrades who were with him.

Camp Fire. The camp fire held at the school auditorium Wednesday evening was open to all and almost every seat was occupied, and in many seats there were two. The assembly enjoyed singing a number of patriotic and popular songs; everybody joined in and the result was inspiring.

Edwin S. Chalker acted as chairman of the meeting and announced the "Star Spangled Banner" as the first selection on the official program.

Melvin A. Bates of this city extended to the officers and visiting delegates the official welcome of the city. After a piano trio and encore by Mrs. Holliday, Mrs. Dorch and Miss Charlotte Flagg, response was made by Maj. Gen. R. J. Gillespie.

The speaker stated that the organization had been in 20 national conventions and that they had never been given such a welcome as they had had in Grayling. The conventions held in Detroit and other large cities had been cold and uncheerful while here they had been warmly welcomed and everybody was enjoying the meetings. On behalf of the members of the two leagues he offered a rising vote of thanks. He said the motto of the order was "Loyalty, patriotism and protection," and told of the work of the order and of many of its heroes and aims. The stars and stripes which are emblazoned in their League colors, reaches around the world and that now there is no nation but that takes their hats off whenever they see them. He said that he believed our most serious problem today was the immigration problem, and that we must all help to educate the foreigner that America is for Americans and that if they come here they must become one of us, and that the National Legion must bend every effort to teach them Americanism.

M. C. Barney of Flint, a veteran of the Civil war, re-assured the people of Grayling that they appreciated the warmth of the greetings and friendships that are being shown by the people of Grayling. He said that if it could be, he would like to have the convention last a week. He was having a fine time, he said, and that he had talked before the school that morning and had the privilege of shaking hands with about five or six hundred school children and that he considered the privilege worth a thousand dollars. He told in an interesting and inspiring manner some of his experiences while marching with Sherman's army to the sea.

Three little girls—Ada Kidston, Marie Schmidt and Pauline Schoonover played piano trio of a medley of patriotic airs.

Mrs. Mae Martin of Flint spoke of the objects of the order, which are primarily to "Unite socially and fraternally the wives, sisters and daughters of the organization." Like the former speakers she expressed her pleasure in having selected Grayling for their meeting instead of a larger city. Another matter that she wanted the public to understand was that their organization was not a fraternal benefit insurance order but instead is a "funeral benefit order." She closed her talk by giving the Legion flag salute.

Supt. B. E. Smith of the Grayling schools said that our schools are in hearty accord with the principles of the convention and assured the visitors that the doors of Grayling school would always be open to them.

Mr. Rasmus Hanson of this city, who also is well known thruout the state, told the delegates that the people of Grayling felt honored in having been selected as their convention city this year, and that it was a pleasure to have them with us. He said that he was an adopted son of America and that coming here considered he must become one of our people, which everybody who knows Mr. Hanson will fully agree that he has been a most exemplary citizen.

Mrs. Holliday, Mrs. Dorch and Miss Flagg rendered another of their appreciative piano trios, after which the chairman introduced Mr. John Shook of Saginaw.

He is a member of the American Legion and had just returned from the state convention that was held first of the week at Kalamazoo. He paid a fine and well deserved tribute to our citizen Mr. Rasmus Hanson, who had spoken before him, and congratulated our city upon having such a person living here, and assured his auditors that Mr. Hanson's name would be remembered and spoken just as long as there was an ex-service man of Michigan living. Mr. Shook read a brief and highly interesting sketch on our flag, which he said was only completed in the year 1912, when Arizona threw off America's last territorial mantle and cloaked herself under the sisterhood of states. The article also gave the position of each star in the flag and the state for which it stood. The speaker also urged that more courtesy be shown the flag and that hats should be removed whenever the colors are passing.

Mrs. Millie Stuck of Detroit read a very interesting paper. The motto of the Legion, she said, was "Love, Honor and Charity." Also many good things about their order were told and also of their objects and hopes.

The campfire was closed by the assembly singing America, after which the officers, delegates and members (Continued on fourth page.)

LIKES HIS NEW POSITION.

John B. Buehler, former physical instructor of the Grayling schools, is this year occupying a similar position in the schools at Nashwauk, Minnesota. The following letter addressed to Supt. B. E. Smith will be of interest to the pupils and others in Grayling who knew Mr. Buehler and we appreciate the privilege of printing it. It reads as follows:

Sept. 17, 1921.

Dear Mr. Smith: I thought perhaps you would like to know how I enjoy my work here. I am getting along fine. This school is far and much better than I expected. We have two very large modern new buildings here, value over a million dollars. The new high school building is the best I ever saw or even heard of. By giving out the courses to you, you can imagine the building for high school students only.

The courses are, besides regular academic work, machine shop work, manual training, carpentry, automobile repairing, electrical work, domestic science, cooking and sewing, printing, pottery making, art drawing, jewelry making, tin-smithing, foundry work, also physical training and swimming.

The gym here is a well finished one with artistic decorations, finished off like an auditorium. The balcony work is really wonderful. The swimming pool is very fine and beautiful. It has a gallery for spectators. The room and pool is absolutely white with the floor being inlaid with various colors. Never saw a pool like it. On the whole the building is modern or ahead of times. I am furnished with a large office, private locker room, store room and shower.

The people here are practically all foreigners, mostly Italians, Finnish and Greeks, also Bulgarians, Servians, Montenegrians and Austrians. Mining of iron ore is the chief occupation; population is 3,000. The city is wealthy and everything is bought one asks for. My gym is fully equipped with apparatus. The school furnishes absolutely everything free to teachers and the children. Nothing is bought by the children or teachers.

I am sure gratified in securing such a wonderful position in these schools. Give my remembrance to Mrs. Smith and also to the remaining faculty.

Your friend,

John B. Buehler.

FEW OF THE NEW GAME LAWS.

DUCK SEASON NOW OPEN. UNLAWFUL TO HAVE LOADED FIREARMS IN VEHICLE.

With the advent of the hunting season it seems well that we should point out some of the principal features of the new game laws.

First we must remind our readers that it is unlawful to carry any kind of loaded firearms in any auto or vehicle.

All persons over 17 years must secure license to hunt.

The duck law, season for which is now open—September 16 to December 31st, permits the taking of 25 in one day; 50 in possession at one time, and 60 in one calendar week.

Partidge season opens October 15 to November 20. Five in one day; 10 in possession and 25 in season.

Rabbits. October 15 to December 31. Seven may be taken in one day; 10 may be had at one time and 25 in season.

Snow-shoe, commonly called Jack Rabbits; season October 15 to March 1st, inclusive. Seven in one day; 10 may be had in possession and 25 in season.

Deer (male). Season from November 10th to 30th inclusive. One male deer under hunter's license. One male deer under camp license. Unlawful to have in possession more than 30 days after close of season.

WILL BOOST HOME PAPERS.

Week of November 7-12 Set For Nation-Wide Endeavor.

"Subscribe to your home town paper."

This is the slogan of a new nationwide movement backed by the National Editorial association and other agencies.

The movement has back of it far more than a selfish desire on the part of newspapers to acquire increased circulation, for it is, in effect, a step toward the perfect unification of America by the strengthening of ties that bind everyone to his native soil.

The campaign is, moreover, an excellent opportunity to boost the home town. The men and women who were born and reared here have, some of them, been away for many years and many important changes have taken place—changes in which they would be greatly interested. It is more often the case than not that private correspondence overlooks these changes however carefully one might attempt to write "the news" in a letter.

The newspaper, on the other hand, prints all the items of interest, large and small, and is the ideal medium through which to keep in touch with the home town.

In order to stimulate this movement we are this week offering an extra copy of The Avalanche to every subscriber who calls or writes for it. This extra can be sent, with a special subscription blank which we will furnish, to any member of the family who is away from home. Or, if preferred, we will mail a copy free of charge to anyone you designate. Do it now.

NEW PASTOR FOR ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Fr. Walters Promoted After One Year and a Half Stay in Grayling.

Deep regret was experienced last Sunday morning at St. Mary's church when Fr. E. J. Walters, announced to his parishioners that he was about to leave Grayling. Word came to him the latter part of the week that he had been transferred to Byron Center, Michigan, located about fifteen miles from Grand Rapids. At Byron Center Fr. Walters will have a parochial school in connection with St. Sebastian's church. Altho it is a much larger parish and a better promotion Fr. Walters says that he regrets leaving the people of Grayling, having been here just one year and a half, coming to take the place of Fr. J. J. Riess, who at that time was promoted to St. Mary's, Grand Rapids. The new pastor is Rev. Fr. A. O. Bosler who comes from St. Sebastian's church at Byron Center and who will be here in time for services next Sunday. In order that his parishioners might bid him adieu, a farewell party in honor of Rev. Father Walters was arranged by members of St. Mary's Altar society and the Knights of Columbus, Wednesday evening at the Knights of Columbus hall. The entire parish and a number from the missions were present to express their regret at the departure of their beloved pastor.

In the short time he has been here, Fr. Walters has made scores of sincere friends, especially those who have had occasion to really know his kindly patience and sincere sympathy.

A short musical program was rendered by members of the parish. Miss Estelle Prevost of West Branch also entertained with several humorous readings. Mr. Geo. McPeak, as toastmaster introduced the several numbers and on behalf of St. Mary's parish, Grayling and St. Leo's parish, Frederic, presented Father Walters with a substantial purse. Fr. Walters was then called on to speak and responded by expressing his appreciation of the kindness and good will of the people and his regret at leaving but said he would always have a warm spot in his heart for Grayling.

At the conclusion of the program, refreshments were served in the club rooms by the Ladies of the Altar society. Here again the assemblage enjoyed an additional treat as well as a surprise. Mr. M. E. Ryan of Detroit an entertainer of rare ability, kept his listeners convulsed with laughter by his funny stories, Irish mimicry and humor.

Fr. Walters carries to his new post of duty the best wishes of hosts of friends, not only of his church people but also among our townspeople in general. Other than Grayling Fr. Walters also had charge of the missions—St. Leo's at Frederic and St. Michael's at Roscommon and was loved and highly esteemed by the people of each and all of them. Fr. Walters will leave Grayling tomorrow for Byron Center.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

HUBAM.

A good many people in Crawford County have small lots of the Annual White Sweet clover called Hubam. It is to be hoped that all will save seed from these small lots, as the seed is very valuable.

This Hubam is a wonderful addition to the resources of the farm; for, it can be sowed in the spring, and make good hay or pasture by mid-summer.

Hubam is doing well wherever we hear of it throughout the state. Every farmer should welcome the coming of Hubam, as it brings such quick relief in when there is prospect of shortage of hay.

So, let all patiently save the seed they raised this year, and sow it next year.

It will increase with surprising rapidity.

Those who have small plots of it, can carefully cut it, stem by stem, with a sharp knife, in order not to jar off the seed. Lay the stems on blankets or sheets. Let dry thoroughly, and shell by rubbing between the hands.

Seed Corn.

The man who has a lot of well selected well-cured seed corn, is to be envied.

The time to save it is now, from the standing stalk. After it is selected, it should not stay in piles, crates or bags, as it will start to heat and to lose vitality, in twenty-four hours.

It should be slowly and very thoroughly dried before freezing weather. While drying no two ears should touch.

The best seed corn men all agree on these points.

A man shows his standard of farming by the seed corn he is satisfied with.

No grains without pains!

Green Manure

We are not going to urge sowing vetch and rye after this date; but we do urge farmers to still put in some more rye, to be plowed in next spring when knee high, as green manure.

Those who do it will never regret it. Too many fields in Crawford County are worked and worked without feeding. A man is simply robbing himself when he does it. Worse than that, he is robbing the next generation who will use that land.

There are few things of which a man should justly feel more ashamed than of running his land.

A man who is known to starve his horses is looked upon with scorn by neighbors.

To starve land is even worse.

It is not necessary either.

State Fair

Crawford County drew $112.74 premiums at the Detroit State Fair; and $30 at Saginaw.

Crawford County is full of possibilities if the owners of its land would give it a chance.

Less bragging, and higher ideals, and more real accomplishment will do it.

"Let us, then, be up and doing. With a heart for any fate. Still achieving, still pursuing. Learn to labor and to wait."

Studebaker

LIGHT SIX Now $1150

Why Studebaker can sell the Light-Six at the new low price

The LIGHT-SIX is built complete in the most modern automobile plant in the world, designed especially for the production of this car.

Studebaker manufactures in this plant its own drop forgings; its own castings, stampings, motors, axles, transmissions; its own steering gears, springs, bodies, tops and other vital parts.

Under these favorable manufacturing conditions and because of its enormous production and standardized methods of manufacture, Studebaker is able to make important savings—these savings are reflected in the price of the car to you.

The LIGHT-SIX is a real step forward in automobile engineering. No other light, six-cylinder automobile yet produced has a motor so free from vibration, nor so flexible and powerful.

What you should know about the LIGHT-SIX

Power—40 H. P. in a detachable-head motor of great flexibility, remarkably free from vibration, and with the exclusive Studebaker inclined valve feature.

Economy—18 to 22 miles to the gallon—12,000 to 18,000 miles on tires.

Balance—You could cut the LIGHT-SIX in two parts or four parts and find that each section would weigh the same. Such perfect balance means steady road holding—there is no side sway or creeping.

Comfort—Equal distribution of weight means easy riding and easy handling. The touch of one hand on the steering wheel is sufficient to keep it on the road.

See this car—drive it—test it. You will be won by it. You will understand why it is the Studebaker ideal of what a light, six-cylinder car should be.

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

"HONEST ABE"

Synopsis.—Samson and Sarah Taylor, with their two children, Joseph and Betsy, travel by wagon in the summer of 1841 from their home in Vermont, Vt., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the country of the Sangamon, in Illinois. At Niagara Falls they meet a party of immigrants, among them a youth named John McNeil, who also decides to go to the Sangamon country. All of the party suffer from fever and ague. Sarah's ministrations save the life of a youth, Harry Needles, in the last stages of fever, and he accompanies the Taylors. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young "Abe" Lincoln. The Taylors are introduced to everyone and decide to settle at New Salem.

"Welcome! and here's the best seat at the fireside," he said to Samson. "My wife and daughter are away for a visit and for two days I've had the cabin to myself. Look, ye worshipers of fire, and see how fine it is now! The homely cabin is a place of beauty. What a heaven it is when the flames are leaping! Here is Hogarth's line of beauty; nothing perpendicular or horizontal."

He took Abe's hand and went on: "Here, ye lovers of romance, is one of the story-tellers of Ishpania who has in him the wisdom of the wandering tribes. He can tell you a tale that will draw children from their play and old men from the chimney corner. My boy, take a chair next to Mr. Taylor. Mr. Taylor, you stand up as proud and firm as a big pine. I believe you're a Yankee."

"So do I," said Samson. "If you took all the Yankee out of me I'd have an empty skin."

Then Abe began to show the stranger his peculiar art in these words: "Stephen, Nuckles used to say: 'God's grace embraces the isles of the sea and the uttermost parts of the earth. It takes in the Esquimaux and the Hottentots. Some go so far to say that it takes in the Yankees but I don't go so far.'"

Samson joined in the good-natured laughter that followed. "If you deal with some Yankees you take your life in your hands," he said. "They can serve God or Mammon and I guess they have given the devil some of his best ideas. He seems to be getting a lot of Yankee notions lately."

"There was a powerful prejudice in Kentucky against the Yankees," Abe went on. "Down there they used to tell about a Yankee who sold his hogs and was driving them to town. On the way he decided that he had said them too cheap. He left them with his drover in the road and went on to town and told the buyer that he would need help to bring 'em in."

"How's that?" the buyer asked. "Why they git away an' go to runnin' through the woods an' fields an' we can't keep up with 'em."

"I don't think I want 'em," says the buyer. "A speedy hog hasn't much pork to carry. I'll give ye twenty bits to let me off."

"I guess that Yankee had one more hog than he'd counted," said Samson. "Whatever prejudice you may find here will soon vanish," said Kelso, turning to the newcomer. "I have great respect for the sturdy sons of New England. I believe it was Theodore Parker who said that the pine was the symbol of their character. He was right. Its roots are deep in the soil; it towers above the forest; it has the strength of tall masts and the substance of the bulwark in its body, music in its waving branches and turpentine in its veins. I thought of this when I saw Webster and heard him speak at Plymouth."

"What kind of a looking man is he?" Abe asked. "A big erect, splendid figure of a man. He walked like a ram at the head of his flock."

Abe who since his story had sat with a sad face looking into the fire now leaned forward, his elbows on his knees, and shook his head with interest while his gray eyes took on a look of animation. The doctor speaks often of the "cell of sadness" on his face.

"He is a very great man," Abe exclaimed. "Have you learned that last noble flight of his in the reply to Haynes, as you promised?" Kelso asked. "I have," said Abe, "and the other day when I was tramping back from Bowlin's Green's I came across a drove of cattle and stopped and gave it to them. They all let go of the grass and stood looking."

"Good! Now stand up and let us see how you imitate the great chief of the White clan," said Kelso. The inn and awkward youth rose and began to speak the lines in a high-pitched voice that trembled with excitement. It lowered and steadied and rang out like noble music on a well-played trumpet as the channel of his spirit filled with the mighty current of the orator's passion. Then, indeed, the words fell from his lips like the winter snows.

"They shook our hearts as the wind shakes the branches of a tree," Samson writes in his diary. "The lean, lanky body of the boy was transfigured and as I looked at his face in the firelight I thought it was handsome."

"Not a word was spoken for a minute after he sat down. I had got my first look at Lincoln. I had seen his soul," I think it was then I began to realize that a man was being made among us 'more precious than fine gold; even a man more precious than the golden wedge of Ophir.'"

The doctor gazed in silence at the boy, Kelso sat with both hands in his pockets and his chin upon his breast looking solemnly into the fire. "Thank you, Abe," he said in a low voice. "Something unusual has happened and I'm just a little scared."

"Why?" Abe asked. "For fear somebody will spoil it with another hog story. I'm a little afraid of anything I can say. I would venture this, that the man Webster is a prophet. In his Plymouth address he hears receding into never-returning distance the clank of chains and all the din of slavery. It will come true."

"Do you think so?" Abe asked. "Surely—there are so many of us who hate it. These Yankees hate it and they and their children are scattering all over the midlands. Their spirit will guide the West. The love of liberty is the salt of their blood and the marrow of their bones. Liberty means freedom for all. Wait until these babies, coming out here by the wagonload, have grown to manhood. Slavery will have to reckon with them."

"I hate it, too," said Abe. "If I live I'm going to hit that thing on the head some day."

"Do you still want to be a lawyer?" Kelso asked. "Yes, but sometimes I think I'd make a better blacksmith," said Abe. "I'm trying to make up my mind what's best for me."

"No, you're trying to decide what is best for your friends and your country and for the reign of law and justice and liberty."

"But I think every man acts from selfish motives," Abe insisted. Doctor Allen demurred as follows: "The other night you happened to remember that you had overcharged Mrs. Peters for a jug of molasses and after you had closed the store you walked three miles to return the money which belonged to her. Why did you do it?"

"For a selfish motive," said Abe. "I believe honesty is the best policy."

"Then you took that long walk just to advertise your honesty—to induce people to call you 'Honest Abe' as they have begun to do?"

"I wouldn't want to put it that way," said Abe. "But that's the only way out," the doctor insisted, "and we knowing ones would have to call you 'Sordid Abe.'"

"There's a hidden Abe and you haven't got acquainted with him yet," Kelso interposed. "We have all caught a glimpse of him tonight. He's the Abe that loves honor and justice and humanity and their great temple of freedom that is growing up here in the new world. He loves them better than fame or fortune or life itself. I think it must have been that Abe whose voice sounded like a trumpet just now and who sent you off to Mrs. Peters with the money. You haven't the chance to know him that we have. Some day you two will get acquainted."

At this moment there was a loud rap on the door. Mr. Kelso opened it and said: "Hello, Eli! Come in."

A hairy-faced, bow-legged man, bent under a great pack, partly covered with bed ticking, stood in the doorway.

"Hello, Mr. Kelso," the bearded man answered. "The poor wandering Jew has come back ag'in—hey? I think I haf to take de bump off my back before I gits in."

Staggering beneath his load he let it down to the ground. "Bring in your Trojan horse and mind you do not let out its four and twenty warriors until morning. I'll have some bread and milk for you in a minute. Gentlemen, this is my friend Eli—a wandering pioneer of trade."

"I haf a wonderful line o' goods—wonderful! wonderful!" said Eli, gesturing with both hands. "First supper—then open your Trojan horse," said Kelso. "First I must show my goods," Eli insisted, "an' I'll bet you take dem all—everything vat I have in dot pack an' you pay my price an' you tank me an' say 'Eli, vat you have to drink?'"

"I'll bet you four bits I don't," said Kelso. "You are my friend; I would not take your money like dot so easy. No! It would not be right. These are Scotch goods, gentlemen—so rare an' beautiful—noting like dem in de world."

He began to undo his pack while the little company stood around him. "Gentlemen, you can see but you cannot buy. Only my friend can have dem goods," he went on glibly as he removed the cover of the pack.

Suddenly there was a lively stir in it. To the amazement of all a beautiful girl threw aside the ticking and leaped out of the large wicker basket it had covered. With a merry laugh she threw her arms around Jack Kelso's neck and kissed him.

The men clapped their hands in noisy merriment. "That's like him, isn't it?" said the doctor. "Exactly," Abe exclaimed. "I stop at David Burney's an' dere she took de goods out o' my pack an' fix up dis job lot for you," said Eli with a laugh.

"A real surprise party!" the girl exclaimed. She was a small-sized girl, bearing sixteen, with red cheeks and hazel eyes and blonde hair that fell in curls upon her shoulders.

"Mr. Taylor, this is my daughter Bina," said Kelso. "She is skilled in the art of producing astonishment." "She must have heard of that handsome boy at the tavern and got in a hurry to come home," said the doctor. "Ann Rutledge says that he is a right party boy," the girl laughed as she brushed her curls aside.

CHAPTER IV.

Which Presents Other Log-Cabin Folk and the First Steps in the Making of a New Home and Certain Capacities and Incapacities of Abe.

Next morning at daylight two parties went out in the woods to cut timber for the home of the newcomers. In one party were Harry Needles carrying two axes and a well-filled lunch-pail; Samson with a saw in his hand and the boy Joe on his back; Abe with a saw and ax and a small jug of root beer and a book tied in a big red handkerchief and slung around his neck. When they reached the woods Abe cut a pole for the small boy and carried him on his shoulder to the creek and said:

"Now you sit down here and keep order in this little frog city. If you hear a frog say anything improper you fetch him a whack. Don't allow any nonsense. We'll make you mayor of Frog City."

The men fell to with axes and saws while Harry limbed the logs and looked after the mayor. Their huge muscles flung the sharp axes into the timber and gnawed through it with the saw. Many big trees fell before noon when they stopped for lunch.

While they were eating Abe said: "I reckon we better saw out a few boards this afternoon. Need 'em for the doors. We'll tote a couple of logs up on the side o' that knoll, put 'em on skids an' whip 'em up into boards with the saw."

Samson took hold of the middle of one of the logs and raised it from the ground. "I guess we can carry 'em," he said. "Can ye shoulder it?" Abe asked. "Easy," said Samson as he raised an end of the log, stepped beneath it and, resting its weight on his back, soon got his shoulder near its center and swung it clear of the ground and walked with it to the knollside where he let it fall with a resounding thump that shook the ground. Abe stopped eating and watched every move in this remarkable performance. The ease with which the big Vermont had so defied the law of gravitation with that unwieldy stick amazed him.

"That thing'll weigh from seven to eight hundred pounds," said he. "I reckon you're the stoutest man in this part o' the state an' I'm quite a man myself. I've lifted a barrel o' whisky and put my mouth to the bung hole. I never drink it."

"Say," he added as he sat down and began eating a doughnut. "If you ever hit anybody take a sledge hammer or a crowbar. It wouldn't be decent to use your fist."

They hewed a flat surface on opposite sides of the log which Samson had carried and peled it and raised its lower end on a cross timber. Then they marked it with a chalk line and sliced it into inch boards with a whip saw. Abe standing on top of the log and Samson beneath it. Suddenly the saw stopped. A clear, beautiful voice flung the music of "Sweet Nightingale" into the timbered hollow. It halted the workers and set the woodland ringing. The men stood silent like those hearing a benediction. The singing ceased. Still they listened for half a moment. It was as if a spirit had passed and touched them.

"It's him—the little vixen!" said Abe tenderly. "She's an odd child and as pretty as a spotted fawn, and about as wild. She's a kind of a first cousin to the bobolink."

When they were getting ready to go home that afternoon Joe got into a great hurry to see his mother. It seemed to him that ages had elapsed since he had seen her—a conviction which led to noisy tears.

Abe knelt before him and comforted the boy. Then he wrapped him in his jacket and swung him in the air and started for home with Joe astride his neck.

Samson says in his diary: "His tender play with the little lad gave me another look at the man Lincoln." "Some one proposed once that we should call that stream the Minnehaha," said Abe as he walked along. "After this Joe and I are going to call it the Minnebookoo."

The women of the little village had met at a quilting party at ten o'clock with Mrs. Martha Waddell. There Sarah had had a seat at the frame and heard all the gossip of the countryside. The nimble-fingered Ann Rutledge—a daughter of the tavern folk—had sat beside her. Ann was a slender, good-looking girl of seventeen with blue eyes and a rich crown of auburn hair and a fair skin well browned by the sunlight. She was the most dexterous needle worker in New Salem.

John McNeil, whom the Taylors had met on the road near Niagara Falls and who had shared their camp with them, arrived on the stage that evening. He was dressed in a new butternut suit and clean linen and looked very handsome. Samson writes that he resembled the pictures of Robert Emmet. With fine, dark eyes, a smooth skin, well-moulded features and black hair neatly brushed on a shapely head he was not at all like the rugged Abe. In a low tone and very modestly, with a slight brogue on his tongue he told of his adventures on the long shore road to Michigan. Ann sat listening and looking into his face as he talked. Abe came in, soon after eight o'clock, and was introduced to the stranger. All noted the contrast between the two young men as they greeted each other. Abe sat down for a few minutes and looked sadly into the fire but said nothing. He rose presently, excused himself and went away.

Watched Every Move in This Remarkable Performance.

Perfectly Safe. "Ma, may I go boating?" asked Doris. "Indeed, you shall not," replied her fond mother. "Who in the world asked you?" "Mr. Buffers," said the girl. "Oh, very well, you may go with him. He has a cork leg and if the boat upsets you can just hang on to that."

As to Luck. "Do you think Friday is unlucky?" "No, I was born on a Friday." "Well, what do your parents think?"

Busy. "Did you do any fly fishing while you were on your vacation?" "A little. I did more fly swatting."

Early Habits. Ethel—Are they engaged? Clara—Not yet. He still hires a taxi when they go to a show.

Raising the cabin. (TO BE CONTINUED.) NATURE FOND OF FREAKS

Good Old Dame Seems to Take Pride in Perpetuating Physical Oddities in Mankind. Occasionally it happens that a boy or girl is born with webbed feet—that is to say, with toes united by fleshy tissues. It is a phenomenon called "syndactyly."

This eccentricity is apt to be handed down from generation to generation in a family, appearing in some of its members, but not in others. The Magazine of Heredity describes one such case, in a branch of an old New England family. The paternal grandfather was web-footed and bequeathed his peculiar toes to a son, who passed them along to three of his six children.

If these people were to intermarry for three or four generations with another web-footed family, all the children born would exhibit the peculiarity. For nature, curiously enough, seems always willing to perpetuate freaks of any kind.

What we call freaks, or "sports," in the animal or the vegetable world are nature's little experiments. It is by this means that she creates new species and varieties. Some anthropologists are of opinion that all human beings were originally black and that the first white man was a sport. It might be said that many white people today respond to that description, though not in the same sense.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Has Had Ten Capitals. North Carolina has had at least ten capitals, including Bath, Edenton, Brunswick, Wilmington, Newberry, Hillsboro, Smithfield, Fayette and Raleigh. The reason for so many lay in the custom prior to 1791 of transferring the seat of government to the place of residence of the governor or the temporary meeting place of the assembly. In 1791 one square mile of land was purchased for the foundation of Raleigh as the permanent seat of government. At present the city covers four square miles.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

GIFTS THAT LAST

Are you proud to pull out your watch?

FIFTY YEARS ago, perhaps, your grandfather bought a watch. Thick, elaborately ornamented and heavy in the pocket, it represented the highest skill of the watchmaker of that day. Perhaps it has come down to you as an heirloom.

And yet, if you were buying a watch today, would you choose such a model? Would you wear a suit of clothes of the style of a half-century ago?

Watchmaking has progressed. The modern thin models, with all the accuracy and sturdiness of their cumbersome predecessors, and with an added beauty of line, have become the ideal timekeepers for the man and woman of today. Such a watch can display with a full measure of pride.

Keep the old watch for the memories that surround it. But let us show you our new models—pocket watches of unsurpassed elegance, sturdy strap watches for the out-of-doors, dainty wristlets in gold and silver and platinum. We will show you the masterpieces of the finest watchmakers of today, in infinite variety of style.

We also invite you to view our selection of watch cases made by Wadsworth, the creator of many of the most popular designs in watch cases for thirty years.

September is proving a wonderful fishing month at Lake Margrethe. Fishermen are reporting some fine catches, of both bass and pike. Monday George Schaible landed a 14 pound pike. Five and six pound black bass are not uncommon. Recently Eabern Hanson and a companion had a dish pan full of black bass and when they were counted it was found that there were only seven. Such a catch as that should gladden the heart of any piscatorialist. Still fishing with minnows is the way the fish are being caught.

Adolph Hermann, who has been employed at Onaway for the summer returned home Sunday to resume his duties in the mill of the Salling Hanson Co. Mr. Cleve Dameru, Misses Marguerite and Gertrude Dameru and Miss Harriet Hermann, nephew and nieces of Mr. Hermann accompanied him home, the party coming by auto. The young people spent Sunday and Monday guests at the Hermann home.

J. A. Dallaire of Portland, Oregon, has leased the New Russell hotel and will take possession October 12th. He says that he will fix the place up in a good clean condition and have good rooms at a moderate rate, and that also later he will re-arrange the dining room and install a regular restaurant and eating place. Mr. Dallaire is a brother-in-law of Joseph Charron of Maple Forest. At one time he lived in Grayling, working as cook for the local lumber company, leaving here 27 years ago having lived here at that time 11 years.

Alonso and George Colleen have purchased from their mother, Mrs. J. J. Colleen, the land between the railroad track and the lake, having a lake frontage of 800 feet. They have worked busy clearing it out and by next camping season say they will have it in fine condition for camping purposes and picnic grounds. They will construct picnic tables and other requisites for making the place convenient for the uses mentioned. They also will build an addition of forty feet to the dancing pavilion and a screened-in veranda about the whole building. A large new ice house and a number of other improvements for the good of this popular resort are contemplated and will make it one of the special attractions of Lake Margrethe.

THE KEY THAT UNLOCKS THE DOOR TO LONG LIVING.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.—Advertisement.

THE IDEAL PURGATIVE.

As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect. —Advertisement.

DECISION DELAYED ON INDICTMENTS

JUDGE FLANNIGAN WILL GIVE HIS OPINION LATER IN PRISON AFFAIR.

ATTORNEY ATTACKS CHARGES

Sherwood Declares Indicted Men Employees, and Not Officials of State Institution.

Marquette.—Circuit Judge R. C. Flannigan will not rule at this term of court on the motion to quash indictments against defendants in the Marquette prison case charging unlawful purchase of state property, he announced late last week.

Judge Flannigan announced that he would not be able to take the motion under advisement before 20 days and gave attorneys that length of time to file briefs.

Arguments for and against the motion, to quash most of the indictments brought by the grand jury and on the demand by the defendants' counsel for bills of particulars explaining the charges against them if the indictments stand, have been heard by Judge Flannigan.

Myron J. Sherwood, attorney for the defendants, declared that indictments charging unlawful purchase of state property are irregular and should be quashed because they are not indictments of the prison, whereas, he contended, the persons indicted are not officers, within the meaning of the general prison law, but employees. As employees, he said, they had a right to purchase goods alleged to have been bought unlawfully.

He argued further that offenses charged in the indictments involving purchase of state property by his clients did not charge felonies or misdemeanors within the meaning of the statute, but instead charged breaches of law which are not indictable.

Answering Mr. Sherwood's arguments, Prosecuting Attorney Kennedy referred to state statutes to combat the claim of the defense that the prison men indicted for alleged unlawful purchases were employed and not officers of the institution, and argued that under the prison law they are indictable for offenses alleged in the indictment.

He denied irregularity in the indictments, arguing that the language of the statutes involved had been used in their construction, and declared that the charges set forth are specific enough to satisfy statute requirements.

Mr. Sherwood stressed his demand that if the indictments stand, the defendants must be furnished with bills of particulars, specifying in detail as to time and place, the offenses charged and giving descriptions and amounts of property alleged to have been unlawfully purchased.

He contended it would be unjust to ask his clients to prepare a defense against charges so general as those put into the indictments.

ALL KNOW JACK WILLIAMS

Adjutant of North Dakota Legion Department Acquired Popularity While Serving as Newsie.

Everybody in North Dakota, and not a few in bordering states know Jack Williams, a dutiful of the American Legion department, and his resolute voice.

Williams acquired both his popularity and his voice by crying "Extra, extra, all about it" on the streets of Fargo, N. D., for six years.

While a newsie, Williams conceived a monopoly on all the city's evening papers which brought all the other boys into his employ and made money for him. Later he branched out and worked in a newspaper press room. He worked up to pressman, a position he was holding when he enlisted in the Third Engineers for the war.

Forced to quit school while in the fourth grade, Williams obtained a good education on the streets and by night study. At twenty-one years old he was president of the Fargo Trades and Labor assembly, a post he resigned to enlist. He went into the army as a private and came out with the same rank. He was the first state adjutant of the American Legion department.

POST SELECTS THIS BEAUTY

Puget Sound Organization Chooses Miss Hazel Jordan as One of Their Prettiest.

A dip in refreshing ocean water every day during the summer and every week, at least, during the winter, makes for the sparkling eyes and exceptional beauty of Miss Hazel Jordan, recently selected by the American Legion of Seattle, Wash., as one of the three most beautiful girls in the great Northwest.

Because of the cool, moist air which blows the year around, because they swim, skate, ski, hunt and fly and do everything else that a real live American girl is supposed to do, the beauties of the Northwest far surpass those of any other section of the United States, the Legion of Seattle holds. All these advantages obviate the use of rouge, powder, the lipstick and paint, too, they declare.

Miss Jordan lives in Everett, Wash., on the eastern shore of Puget sound. She was the only one of the three girls who would tell, willingly, her age. She admits eighteen years.

Although he had gone through the World War unscathed and had qualified as an expert in handling artillery ammunition, Frank M. Kinne, Indianapolis, Ind., recently was nearly blown to pieces in his home by a three-inch shell he had brought from France. After having served in an exhibition squad which gave demonstrations of how shells were unloaded and exploded, Kinne was unloading his souvenir shell when the fatal accident occurred.

Kinne's little home was wrecked, but his mother and sister, sleeping in an upstairs room, miraculously escaped injury. The local post of the American Legion, to which the soldier had applied for membership following his recent discharge from the regular army, gave him a military burial.

Legion Posts to the Rescue.

WELL POSTED LEGION MAN

Commander of Department of New Mexico Knows About Professions Represented in Membership.

In his brief career a farmer, trapper, dynamite worker, oil field worker, motion picture operator, book-keeper and lawyer, J. W. Chapman, Gallup, New Mexico, came well qualified to his present post as commander of the state's department of the American Legion. He knows a little about every profession represented in the state's membership.

Covering all of the United States and most of Mexico in his travels, Mr. Chapman settled down to the practice of law in New Mexico just before America entered the World War. When she did, he volunteered as a mechanic and chauffeur and spent two months in an army motor shop. Then he was transferred to a balloon school, but before he could get acquainted with the blimps they moved him again. This time to the company's personnel headquarters. He was in an officers' training camp when the armistice came.

Entering Legion work early, Mr. Chapman was a member of the committee which wrote the non-political clause into the organization's constitution. He holds down his biography to this: "I am a member of the A. F. & A. M., B. P. O. E., and K. of P. I am an American by birth, training and inclination; an Episcopalian by faith and a prohibitionist by law. I sing, dance, play the piano and am married. What else could I ask?"

TWO AND TWO MAKE FOUR

If all the manufacturers of rubber tires for motor cars in the United States were to operate up to the limit of their facilities twenty-four hours per day, the aggregate production per year would be in the vicinity of 37,000,000 tires.

Not one tire company that we know of could possibly operate full facilities twenty-four hours a day, therefore the aggregate production, under the most favorable circumstances, would not and could not be above 25,000,000 tires per year.

There are now, according to United States statistics, approximately 10,000,000 motor cars in daily use in the United States. At a conservative estimate each of these cars will consume at least two new tires annually, a total of 20,000,000 tires.

The annual and normal production of motor cars in the United States is now about 3,000,000. Each of these cars requires five tires or a total annually of 15,000,000 tires.

This means a demand of 35,000,000 tires annually, not taking into consideration the constant increase in the volume of cars in use and in the annual production of motor cars.

Therefore it is certain that the making of rubber tires is and will continue to be a profitable industry.

The Wildman Rubber Co. of Bay City Surely Presents an Attractive Investment Proposition

The Wildman Self-Sealing Pneumatic Inner Tube

This is the most important advance in tire making because it places in the hands of the owners of motor cars an absolute self-sealing inner tube. Ask any motor car owner what this means. The Wildman Self-Sealing Pneumatic Inner Tube is fully covered with basic patents, both as to its design and the process of making. These are the exclusive property of the Wildman Rubber company and literally give that company the control of the inner tube markets of the world.

If the readers of this announcement could only appreciate the mighty significance of this fact, we would be swamped with a rush of people to buy stock, because the profits which follow the possession of such a tremendously valuable and exclusive product can scarcely be imagined. Investigate.

Gentlemen—The writer was present today at the demonstration given by your company for newspaper representatives and others, in connection with your new inner tube, and was an eye-witness to all the various tests, etc., in fact I assisted in making the same.

It certainly was amazing to see ice picks, nails and other sharp as well as blunt instruments driven a number of times through the casing and tube of a tire filled with compressed air, and to know that after the withdrawal of these various things, there was absolutely no escape of air whatever, through the punctures.

Have had many flat tires during the number of years I have driven a car, and having those experiences in mind, the results of the tests are almost unbelievable. I assume many people would be incredulous unless they were in attendance at a demonstration, and saw what really wonderful results were achieved.

You have a most valuable asset in this much-needed tube, and there is no question in my mind but what it will advertise and sell itself in every community in which it is introduced; it fills a long-felt want and will be a boon to all owners and drivers of automobiles and trucks; undoubtedly in many instances the invention will do away with the necessity of carrying spare tires.

All good wishes.

Very truly,

W. G. MacEDWARD,

Bay City Board of Commerce.

The Wildman Rubber company is a Michigan industry. It is an assured success and you are invited to become a part of that company. We could wish it possible that all the stock of the company were held by people in Northeastern Michigan so that the golden harvests which are sure to come could be enjoyed entirely by ourselves. If you knew as we do, all the facts, you would not hesitate to come with us now and also urge your neighbors to buy our stock.

In five years from now there will be lots of people who will say: "I had a chance to buy stock in the Wildman Rubber company when it started."

Fill out the coupon and mail to us. Let us help you to investigate and analyze the solidity of our proposition.

CRAWFORD FARMER BELIEVES IN EFFICIENCY ON FARM

Joins Hands With Dairy Experts to Prove Value of Good Bires.

When the Better Sire Train passed thru Grayling there was at least one farmer who served notice on the world that he belonged to that class of farmers who are on the watch for good investments and opportunities to increase the efficiency of their business. When Mr. C. H. Howse of Frederic received a good well-bred male-calf from the Better Sire Train in exchange for his grade bull he proved that he is an up-to-date farmer with excellent judgment. The value of a good sire has been demonstrated so many times and so forcibly that it is a mystery how anyone can excuse the existence of the scrub-bull, and we are glad to note that Mr. Howse has joined hands with our dairy experts and other breeders to prove once more that the money invested in a purebred sire yields big dividends while the scrub-bull is the most expensive piece of equipment on the farm.

"Blood will tell" and when it does we may be sure that Mr. Howse's calf will give a good account of himself. Lakewood King Colantha Korndyke, as his calf is named, is the son of Maplecrest Korndyke Hengerveld who already has 86 daughters that have made the Advanced Registry, which makes him one of the best bulls in Michigan. Three of his daughters, as three-year-olds, averaged over 18,000 pounds of milk and 825 pounds of butter in a year while another one of his 3-yr-old daughters produced 17,849 pounds of milk in ten months. In siring offspring of that kind, old Maplecrest is only proving the quotation at the beginning of this paragraph because his own dam and granddam averaged over 1240 pounds of butter in a year. When one considers that the average production for all the cows in U. S. is 160 pounds of butter and 4,000 pounds of milk, he can appreciate the breeding behind this calf of Mr. Howse. The dam, Colantha Mutual Payne, is also well-bred, being a direct descendant of Johan Hengerveld Lad and other famous producers.

It is these years of breeding and careful selection for production that makes the purebred more valuable than the scrub and the wise farmer is the one who does what Mr. Howse did—take advantage of this careful selection by expert breeders and use their product to increase the efficiency of their own dairy. The farmers of Crawford County had a wonderful opportunity to secure good purebred stock from the Better Sire Train at a very low cost and we are glad that at least one man took advantage of it. William Feldhauser of Maple Forest also purchased a pure-bred sire from this train. This was one that had been taken on at West Branch in exchange for a younger bull. This also is a fine animal and will do much to improve the stock on his farm.

A GOOD FRIEND.

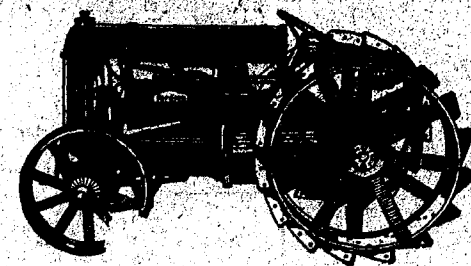

A good friend stands by you when in need. Grayling people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Niels H. Nielsen, carpenter of Park St. endorsed Doan's three years ago and confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

"My back ached day in and day out and was so stiff I could hardly bend one way or the other," says Mr. Nielsen. "The kidney secretions were too frequent in action, too. The last few times I have had these complaints I have taken a few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills from Lewis Drug Store and I have found they do me more good than anything else for they have always cured the attack in short order." (Statement given October 11, 1916.)

On April 28, 1920, Mr. Nielsen said: Doan's Kidney Pills cured me completely several years ago of a bad attack of kidney trouble. I am glad to confirm my former statement which I made in 1916 praising them."
